Germany-Libya: Libyans Indicted for Disco Bombing

German senior prosecutor Dieter Neumann yesterday announced the indictment of five defendants, including a former Libyan security officer, for the bombing in 1986 of the La Belle discotheque in Berlin. The trial will begin in late June and may last up to two years. Libyan leader Qadhafi has not yet responded publicly to the indictments. Four former Libyan officials who allegedly participated in the attack are still wanted by German authorities.

— It is unlikely that Libya will help German authorities apprehend these officials, given Qadhafi's refusals to extradite the Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 bombing suspects.
